CHICAGO

AT CHICAGO, ILLINOIS. Continue to report activities in both the "juice" operations of the BRAVOS brothers and continue investigation with reference to their activities at the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, Incorporated, which may lead toward an anti-racketeering violation or a violation of the Labor Management Relations Act.

ADMINISTRATIVE

All background information pertaining to the BRAVOS brothers has been set forth in referenced reports concerning their gambling activities. Inasmuch as informants and investigation have reflected that the BRAVOS are no longer actively engaged in bookmaking in the Chicago area, but are concentrating their efforts on "juice" operations as well as the operation of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, Inc., the Interstate Transportation of Wagering Information (ITWI) case concerning the BRAVOS brothers has been closed by the

Synopsis: Informants report that GEORGE and NICK BRAVOS have ceased bookmaking activities in Chicago area and are wholly concerned with the operation of A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, Inc., 1217 North Oakley, Chicago, Illinois. BRAVOS brothers' background in industrial laundry stems from GEORGE BRAVOS' interest in the Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply, Inc., Miami, Florida, organized 6/22/60 by [redacted] and GEORGE BRAVOS, with $19,000 capital furnished by BRAVOS and $31,000 acquired through loans. Although Atlantic lost over $70,000 during the first 15 months it operated, it was sold in 9/61 to Cadillac Overall Supply Company, Detroit, Michigan. GEORGE BRAVOS realized profit of more than $80,000 and [redacted] and [redacted] more than $20,000 each. [redacted]

[redacted] On 8/7/62 GEORGE BRAVOS, [redacted] DAVID YARAS and [redacted] organized the A-1 Industrial Uniform, Inc. Purpose of corporation was to deal in industrial uniforms and linens including sale rental and laundry thereof. Informants report that since its organization A-1 has acquired over 35 per cent of the laundry business of automobile dealers in the Chicago area and has also entered extensively into the laundry business of factories, restaurants and taverns. A-1 has acquired over 100 stops since their business started. Surveillances reflect three trucks and truck routes in operation. Informants report that the BRAVOS brothers and DAVID YARAS are depending on hoodlum friends in semi-legitimate businesses as their customers and to secure their friends as customers. One informant reports in one instance, [redacted] Local 710, Meat Drivers Union is traveling with A-1 salesmen in effort to secure business. Informants also report BRAVOS brothers still active in "juice" racket.

[redacted] Bureau of Labor Management Reports, 105 West Adams Street, Chicago, Illinois, advised that he is cooperating with the Detroit and Miami Offices of the Bureau of Labor Management Reports with respect to a case involving the Cadillac Overall Supply Company, 18841 John R Street, Detroit, Michigan. He advised that he had developed information to the effect that the Cadillac Overall Supply Company had bought out the Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply Company of Miami, Florida, in about September, 1961.

He advised that records reflected that principals of the Atlantic firm were GEORGE BRAVOS (70% of the stock), [redacted] (15% of the stock), and [redacted] (15% of the stock). He advised that presently investigation is being conducted to determine whether the GEORGE BRAVOS associated with Atlantic Company is identical with the GEORGE BRAVOS residing at 715 North Pulaski Road, Chicago, Illinois. He further advised that records of the Cadillac firm have been subpoenaed in Detroit, Michigan, by the Bureau of Labor Management Reports, and that they are presently attempting to locate and subpoena the accountant for the Atlantic firm in Florida. He advised that records of the Atlantic firm were never turned over to Cadillac at the time of sale in September, 1961.

[redacted] advised he feels that EUGENE JAMES, deceased, former President of the Laundry Workers Union, Local 46, Chicago, may have gained from this sale or perhaps his predecessor, [redacted]. He advised that his office suspects that GEORGE BRAVOS was simply used as a front for these people. He advised that a full audit of the corporate records and books of the Atlantic firm in Miami is contemplated to get full details regarding the sale of this firm. He advised that they had determined that approximately $68,000 was transferred by the Cadillac firm to a bank in Miami, reportedly for distribution to the shareholders in the Atlantic firm.

It is planned that subpoenas will be issued to the Miami bank involved to determine the recipients of this money, and to attempt to trace its actual dissemination.

He advised that his office had also developed that prior to EUGENE JAMES' death in August, 1961, that he had been connected in some way with the Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply Company in that in early 1960, he approached [redacted] of the Cadillac firm in Detroit, Michigan, for the purpose of purchasing work clothing for the Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply Company, Miami, Florida. JAMES subsequently ordered between $25,000 and $30,000 worth of merchandise which he paid for by check drawn on the account of the Atlantic firm.

He advised that investigation by his office reflected that a NICK BRAVOS of Chicago had been frequently linked with [redacted] the present President of the Laundry Workers Union, Local 46, and for this reason he suspects that BRAVOS may have been acting simply as a front for the [redacted] interests. He further advised that Area Director, [redacted] Labor Management Reports, Miami, Florida, is following the Florida aspect of the case and [redacted] advised that if any violations of the Landrum-Griffin Act (LMRDA-IM) are uncovered, he will properly advise the Chicago Division.

[redacted] requested that any active investigation regarding this matter by the Federal Bureau of Investigation at this time be held in abeyance until the books of both Cadillac and Atlantic have been thoroughly reviewed and audited. He advised that he has made the same request of the Internal Revenue Service regarding any investigation on their part regarding income tax violations on the part of GEORGE BRAVOS involved in the sale of the Atlantic firm to Cadillac of Detroit.

[redacted] Bureau of Labor Management Reports, 105 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois, made available a report of c/o JACK POGUE, U. S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Management Reports, dated October 22, 1962, subject Local 46, Laundry Workers Union, Chicago, Illinois. The report specifically dealt with the acquisition of Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply Inc. of Miami, Florida, by [redacted] and GEORGE BRAVOS and its ultimate sale to the Cadillac Overall Supply Company of Detroit, Michigan, in December, 1961. The report reflected that the information was obtained from the files of [redacted] C.P.A. Miami National Bank and also from interview of [redacted] of Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply, Inc.

Atlantic was organized on June 22, 1960 by [redacted] and GEORGE BRAVOS, with $19,000 capital furnished by BRAVOS and $31,000 from loans ($30,000 furnished by [redacted] mother of [redacted] and $1,000 by BRAVOS). Atlantic lost over $70,000 during the 15 months it operated before it was sold in September, 1961, to Cadillac Overall Supply Company, Detroit, Michigan, owned by the [redacted] brothers. From the transaction BRAVOS received a profit of more than $80,000, and [redacted] and [redacted] more than $20,000 each.

[redacted] advised that the law offices of [redacted] and Levin in Chicago were utilized when the sale of Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply, Inc. was negotiated with Cadillac Overall Supply Company. According to records available to [redacted] the total amount of capital in July, 1960, was $19,000 and [redacted] said that there were 95 shares of stock issued at $200.00 per share, which equals $19,000. Records indicated that 100 shares at $200.00 per share were originally authorized with respect to Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply Company. However, it appeared that the BRAVOS put up $20,000 in cash but for some reason the capital was subsequently set at $19,000 with $1,000 remaining and carried as a loan payable to GEORGE BRAVOS.

Records pertaining to the Cadillac Overall Supply Company reflected a check number 41552 dated September 13, (or September 12), 1961, payable to [redacted] in the amount of $60,000. This $60,000 check and the wire transfer check number 366228 for $68,694.02 from the National Bank of Detroit, payable to the Miami National Bank, the two totaling $128,694.02 were according to the bank statement, deposited to the account of Cadillac in the Miami National Bank on September 19, 1961. The total was distributed by checks drawn payable to the Miami National Bank used to purchase checks as follows:

Cashier's Check No.	Payee	Amount
36992	[redacted]	$ 22,688.58
36993	[redacted]	15,125.72
36994	[redacted]	7,562.86
36995	as Trustee GEORGE BRAVOS	83,316.86
		$128,694.02

The report reflected that investigation disclosed that Cadillac had moved its offices to 1010 North 20th Avenue, Hollywood, Florida, and now operates there under the name of Cadillac Overall Supply Company.

The file further reflected that regarding the detail of loans made to Atlantic, the General Ledger furnished by [redacted] shows a $30,000 loan from [redacted] in August, 1960, with the notation "Int. at 6% fr 8/1/60 DUE 8/1/63". Interest from August 1, 1960, through September 15, 1961, at 6 per cent equals $2,025 on the $30,000 loan.

Atlantic's bank statement for August showed a deposit of $30,059.66 credited to the account on August 3, 1960, and this would appear to include the loan from [redacted] advised that [redacted]

[redacted] had arranged for this loan from his mother prior to the organization of Atlantic. Copies of General Ledger sheets on Notes Payable for 60-61 and 61-62 listing this loan and others by [redacted] and BRAVOS.

[redacted] and [redacted] advised that a special bank account had been established at the Bank of Hallandale, Hallandale, Florida, at the time of the sale, to pay off the liabilities (Accounts Payable and Notes Payable). These liabilities totaled $86,733.71. Of the total, $24,736.42 comprised notes, interest, and open account payable to Detroit Overall, a subsidiary of Cadillac, and was paid by Cadillac direct. The remaining liabilities, totaling $61,997.29, consisted of the following:

Accounts Payable		$19,650.59
Notes Payable:
[redacted]	$ 9,123.95
	197.75
GEORGE BRAVOS	1,000.00
[redacted] note and
int.	32,025.00	42,346.70
		$61,996.29

The files further reflected that on October 2, 1962, [redacted] Cashier, Bank of Hallandale, 801 East Beach Boulevard, advised the writer that Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply Company, 1085 N. E. 62nd Street, Miami, Florida, had two active accounts at the bank - a regular checking account, and a special account for payrolls - both opened in September, 1961, and formerly had a special account which was now closed. He allowed the writer to examine the ledger sheet on the Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply Company Special Account, established September 20, 1961, with a deposit of $61,997.29 and closed out on March 15, 1962, at which time it had a balance of $10,148.80. In examining the ledger sheets, it was noted that checks for $9,000 on September 27, 1961, for $1,000 on October 2, 1961, and for $30,000 on October 5, 1961, had been drawn on the account, and it would appear that these were used to pay the principal on the notes payable to [REDACTED] BRAVOS and [REDACTED] advised that the bank would require a subpoena before microfilmed records of its canceled checks could be examined. The corporate signatures, according to [REDACTED] were [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] any one of whom was authorized to sign checks on the account. Their address is shown on the signature card as Cadillac Overall Supply Company, 18841 John R. Street, Detroit, Michigan. It would seem probable that the canceled checks used to pay the liabilities, including the loan from [REDACTED] may be located at the office of Cadillac Overall in Detroit.

The file also reflected that on October 3, 1962, [REDACTED] was interviewed by the writer at his home at [REDACTED] and gave the following information concerning his activities in connection with the organization and operation of Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply, Inc.

He had been in the industrial laundry business for many years in Michigan and was [REDACTED] Mechanics' Uniform Supply Company in Miami for several years before leaving that company to [REDACTED] in 1960. He had met officials of the Laundry Workers Union when engaged in labor negotiations and had known [REDACTED] since he was a boy in Detroit. [REDACTED] had long wanted to go into business for himself, and [REDACTED] had often talked with him about it and [REDACTED] thought that he could arrange the necessary financing if [REDACTED] could furnish the knowledge and experience in operating such a business.

[REDACTED] had obtained a commitment for a $30,000 loan from his mother and had arranged for $20,000 operating capital to be obtained from GEORGE BRAVOS. [REDACTED] had no known BRAVOS before but thought [REDACTED] had contacted BRAVOS through some of his acquaintances in Chicago, probably through [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] did not know [REDACTED] well; said that he had only met him two or three times briefly, and as far as he knew, [REDACTED] was not interested in Atlantic.

[redacted] had received 15 shares of stock; [redacted] got 10 shares, plus five shares which he held in trust for his uncles, [redacted] and [redacted]. The [redacted] brothers received their five shares, held in trust by [redacted] because they furnished the premises originally occupied by Atlantic in Miami Beach, rent free, and were to use their wide acquaintance in Miami and Miami Beach to obtain business for Atlantic. The [redacted] brothers operated the Vogue laundry in Miami Beach, and Atlantic had originally had all its laundry work done by Vogue but had to cancel that arrangement and move to new premises on 62nd Street in Miami after Vogue and the [redacted] brothers went bankrupt. Both the [redacted] brothers later worked for Atlantic.

[redacted] said the details of the agreement were worked out in the office of [redacted] an attorney in Miami Beach. He said the agreement was verbal and nothing had been put into writing; that BRAVOS put up all the working capital, $20,000; and [redacted] mother put up $30,000 as a loan. [redacted] and [redacted] brothers put up no money for their fifteen shares of stock and [redacted] put up no money for his 15 shares of stock. He said that there had been a clear understanding that they were not to have to put up money for their shares of the business, but were to receive their shares free for organizing and operating the business. He said that later, after Atlantic was sold, he had a controversy with the attorneys for GEORGE BRAVOS and eventually gave BRAVOS a note for $3,000 for three years to pay for his original 15 shares of stock. He said he had never known BRAVOS before and never knew him well and knew nothing of his background except that BRAVOS once said he was in the coal business in Chicago.

[redacted] said he had known the [redacted] brothers for years and had arranged for credit with them to obtain supplies of overalls. He reiterated that he felt sure that [redacted] had never had anything to do with the operation of Atlantic, although he agreed that [redacted] might have made some contacts for [redacted]. He did not know whether [redacted] had ever contacted the [redacted] in connection with Atlantic, but he knew that [redacted] was acquainted with the [redacted] in connection with labor negotiations. [redacted] said that Atlantic lasted a little more than one year and lost money every month of its operation. They expected to lose money until they had increased the business to a greater volume than heretofore obtained and had been operating long enough to have amortized some of their investment in equipment. He had intended to concentrate on building up business because the volume of weekly receipts in such a business was a valuable asset, and they did enough business at the end to have shown a profit if they had stopped their expansion program and serviced the business they had.

[redacted] said that he decided to sell Atlantic after it had become difficult to work with [redacted] and he continued to receive lucrative offers to sell. He said that he had been supposed to run the company and handle the technical details of its operation, while [redacted] was to handle all sales activity under [redacted] general supervision. Although their stock interest in the company was equal, counting the five shares which [redacted] held as Trustee, [redacted] was supposed to have the final say in decisions concerning the operation and drew $260 per week salary, while [redacted] drew $250 per week during the life of Atlantic. However,

[redacted] would not take orders from him or anyone else, and [redacted] was worrying about [redacted] activities, which he was unable to control, and was no longer happy trying to build up business, and decided to sell. Other large laundry and garment manufacturing interests had expressed interest in buying Atlantic but [redacted] had promised [redacted]

[redacted] that he would give him the first chance to buy the company if he ever wanted to sell it. At the time of the sale Atlantic was running a volume of approximately $3,600 per week gross income, he had been offered $62.00 for each dollar's worth of business by another company, and the [redacted] brothers had offered more than that. The parties had a meeting in Chicago sometime in August, 1961, to arrange the details of the transaction, and a final meeting in the Seville Hotel, Miami Beach, in September, 1961. The attorneys and accountants had the papers all ready, they were signed at the hotel, and the deal was closed there.

[redacted] thought that they all, except BRAVOS, went to the Miami National Bank the next day, where they picked up their checks covering their share of the sale of the business. He assumed that BRAVOS' check was either sent to him or picked up for him by someone else. [redacted] got the same amount. They endorsed the checks over to Cadillac Overall Supply Company, which legally ended Atlantic after the sale.

[redacted] and [redacted] agreed with the [redacted] brothers (owners of Cadillac) to stay and keep on operating Atlantic. They were to deposit the checks for their share of the sales price with Cadillac and at the end of three years were each to get 15 per cent of the stock in a new company to be formed. After [redacted] endorsed his check to Cadillac, he got a note from Cadillac for more than $22,000 and a written agreement that he would be given 15 per cent of the stock in the new corporation after three years.

Atlantic continued to operate under the name of Atlantic Industrial Uniform Supply for five or six months after the sale, when the name was changed to Cadillac Overall Supply Company. [redacted] continued to manage the company until about April, 1962, when he resigned. He turned in his note and received a check from Cadillac for $22,000 or $23,000. He believes that the company is now managed from Detroit by the [redacted] brothers and has now moved its operation to Hollywood, Florida. The company never used the name of Florida Industrial Uniform Supply Company, as provided in Articles of Amendment to the Articles of Incorporation, dated September 22, 1961, and obtained from the files of [redacted]. He was not sure why that name had been registered but thought that it was because the [redacted] brothers wanted to conceal their ownership of Atlantic initially. Addendum to Agreement, dated September 8, 1961, obtained from the files of [redacted]. [redacted] provides further details regarding the corporate name.

[redacted] was asked why the [redacted] brothers were willing to pay $216,000 for a company that had been started with $50,000 cash ($19,000 capital; $31,000 loans), had only been in business a little more than a year, during which time it had lost over $70,000 (see Exhibit B) - Financial Statements -- Statement of Operations for the 61 weeks ended September 15, 1961). He said that competition was keen in the industrial uniform supply business and that garment manufacturers such as the [redacted] brothers were willing to pay inflated prices to companies with an established volume of business in order to obtain outlets for their garment factories. He was also asked if BRAVOS' return of over $100,000 on an investment of $20,000 in less than 15 months was not considered at least unusual, if not exorbitant. He admitted the profit was considerable but contended that it was not unusual in the industrial uniform supply business and claimed the return would have been greater if they had another year or two before selling.

BRAVOS' return on the $20,000 invested is computed as follows:

Final payment	$83,316.86
Loan	1,000.00
Escrow fund	18,000.00
	$102,316.86
Plus [redacted] note to BRAVOS (est.)	2,526.31
	$104,843.17

$104,843.17 - plus whatever BRAVOS may have received from [redacted]

It is also noted that [redacted] also did well in the deal, drawing salary at $360 per week, plus $22,688.58 at the time of the sale.

[redacted] first heard about BRAVOS' contention that he and [redacted] owed $6,000 to BRAVOS for their 30 shares of stock when BRAVOS' attorney, [redacted] dunned him for it after the sale. He insisted that this was not part of the original agreement, but, unfortunately, the original agreement between [redacted] and BRAVOS had not been reduced to writing. He said he did not know how [redacted] had handled his $3,000 payment to BRAVOS, but knew that [redacted] had agreed to pay it. [redacted] recalled that he had received a check for a little more than $400.00 for his share of an escrow fund established as part of the sale, from BRAVOS' attorney and had endorsed and returned that as partial payment on the $3,000 BRAVOS claimed he owed him, and eventually signed a note payable to BRAVOS for the remainder of the $3,000 payable monthly over a three year period. He said he had a copy of the note he gave BRAVOS but did not know where it was and was unable to locate it at that time.

[redacted] was questioned regarding the allegation that [redacted] Local 390, International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IBT), Miami, Florida, had been instrumental in taking accounts away from Atlantic and selling them to other companies. He said that after the sale, and especially after [redacted] left the company in about December, 1961, they lost some accounts and business went down. He said that [redacted] one of [redacted] uncles, for whom he held the five shares of stock in trust, had been instrumental in securing a number of accounts for Atlantic when it was first organized, and he thought that [redacted] may have influenced some of these accounts to withdraw their business from Atlantic after [redacted] left. He said that he had met [redacted] on two occasions officially as an officer of the Teamsters but did not know him well. He never suspected that [redacted] had anything to do with losing accounts. He knew that [redacted] was a friend of [redacted] thought that he might have helped [redacted] obtain business, and agreed that [redacted] might have tried to take business away from Atlantic after [redacted] left, but felt sure that if he did anything like that, it was on a friendship basis with [redacted] because of their past connections as fellow-labor officers.

[redacted] was asked if he knew [redacted] and advised that he last met him in Chicago in [redacted] office at the time the parties were negotiating for the sale of Atlantic in August, 1961. He said that [redacted] on that occasion just stuck his head in at the door and nodded and left, and that he was sure he recognized [redacted] because of [redacted] unusually thick spectacles. He said that [redacted] was attorney for a number of unions and assumed that [redacted] was probably in his office on union business. He said he had known of [redacted] as a labor official who had worked for [redacted] in Chicago and met [redacted] here several years ago when [redacted] took him to see [redacted] who was staying at the Thunderbird Motel with his family. While [redacted] and [redacted] were visiting [redacted] came in and was introduced. He said he was unacquainted with [redacted] reputation, had never heard that he might be a gangster or hoodlum, and was sure that he had no connection with Atlantic. [redacted] was questioned in detail regarding the loans made to Atlantic. He said that the $30,000 loan from [redacted] [redacted] mother was repaid. [redacted] had loaned Atlantic $9,000, not including back salary which he frequently had refrained from drawing in order to leave the money in the company as part of the operating funds. The back salary was paid before the sale and the $9,000, which was secured by notes, was paid at the time of the sale of the business. He knew of no other loans except for a loan of $1,000 from BRAVOS on the books. He remembered that BRAVOS had originally put up $20,000 in cash and was supposed to have received 70 shares of stock which, along with [redacted] and [redacted] 15 shares each, equaled the 100 shares authorized. He recalled that later the capitalization had been carried at $19,000, that BRAVOS had been credited with $1,000 as a loan, and that only 95 shares of stock were outstanding at the time Atlantic was sold. He could not remember why this was done, what happened to the other five shares, or any other details of the transaction.

[redacted] further advised that photographs of NICK BRAVOS had been shown to officials of the Atlantic Overall Supply Company, Detroit, Michigan, however, none had been able to identify NICK BRAVOS as being associated with his brother, GEORGE, in any of the above described transactions.

On November 19, 1962, CG T-5 advised with respect to the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, Incorporated, that he heard rumors in the laundry industry in Chicago that this company was set up as a "sham" for out of town interests who did not want to identify themselves.

CG T-5 speculated that the [redacted] brothers of Detroit, Michigan, might be behind the new laundry company. He also heard that there were rumors in the Chicago laundry industry that Chicago hoodlums who several years ago were tied up with the Industrial Garment Service (IGS) were now running the A-1 Industrial Uniform, Inc. He advised that a Chicago hoodlum, FRED EVANS, who formerly ran the IGS, had been killed in gangland fashion in an alley behind his place of business. He advised that at that time it was commonly thought in the industry that EVANS represented bigger hoodlum interests in Chicago and he, for some reason, was deposed. After EVANS was killed the IGS was sold by his wife to legitimate interests who are still operating it. He advised, however, that the accounts that were originally acquired by FRED EVANS and his organization were now being taken away by the A-1 Industrial Uniform, Inc. He advised that in other words the old FRED EVANS accounts were being pirated away from the IGS by the individuals running A-1.

He further advised that one [redacted] a former salesman with IGS was now one of the top salesmen with A-1, further supporting his contention that this new company is nothing more than a revival of hoodlum interests in the industrial laundry business in Chicago.

T-5 advised that he had only lost one stop to date, a Standard gas station at the corner of Addison and Western. T-5 advised that [redacted] told him that he inquired of the individual in this Standard gas station why he changed to A-1, to which the operator of the gas station replied that the driver for A-1 was a friend of his and further that he "might be able to do something with the union". No further explanation was given.

CG T-5 advised with respect to his inquiry with other members os the industrial laundry industry he learned that there was no strong arm methods being used to his knowledge by A-1 and no coercion but rather A-1 was acquiring many accounts which in effect were businesses run by people with hoodlum connections in Chicago. He advised that these customers in turn would recommend to friends of theirs that they should take from A-1 rather than a present service they have.

CG T-5 said that he expected that in the future he would hear more regarding A-1 using their union affiliation to secure additional business. T-5 advised that rumors in the industry were that people running A-1 were well connected with the Laundry Workers Union, the Teamsters and the Mechanics Union.

T-5 further advised that the people running A-1 must have excellent credit or huge amounts of cash at their disposal to set up an industrial laundry operation such as they are running capital equipment is very expensive in this business and judging from the size of the business, T-5 estimated that at least $150,000 to $200,000 would be needed to start such a business.

He further advised that such a cash outlay would be utterly ridiculous unless the company had some pretty firm methods of securing money customers. Due to the low profit margin on each account there must be a vast number of accounts to make such a business pay.

T-5 also advised that another employee of A-1, one [redacted] was formerly with Clean Overhaul Supply Company. Apparently [redacted] is acting as Production Manager for A-1 and is about the only individual who is real familiar with the laundry business. He advised at present A-1 is directing a good portion of their sales after the automobile dealers in the Chicago area and at present are putting considerable pressure on this type of business and causing many of the old laundry companies to lose a considerable amount of business.

CG T-6 advised on November 19, 1962, that he had learned through sources available to him in the industry that A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, Inc. had recently organized and were introducing considerable competition in the industry. He advised that his firm had lost only one stop so far, that being a tavern at 4700 Sheridan Road, Chicago, Illinois. He advised that with respect to the organization of A-1 that one [redacted] of the Chicago New and Used Laundry Equipment Company, owns the building at 1217 North Oakley and is apparently renting to A-1.

He further advised that the former occupant of the building, Superior Laundry, is still in existence but have moved their facilities to a new plant on Kedzie Street in Chicago. He advised that the Supreme Laundry was simply a linen supply but did not engage in industrial business to his knowledge.

He further advised that A-1 is being run, according to rumor in the industry, by "Greek boys" who are connected with Chicago hoodlums. He advised that Roscoe Overall Service, Inc., as well as IGS, has lost a lot of accounts due to A-1 entering the business. He advised that the linen supply business is generally clearly divided by the industrial linen supply and regular linen used by restaurants, taverns, etc. Apparently A-1 is engaging in both types of business which is highly unusual. He advised with respect to pressure that it would be extremely difficult to apply pressure in his opinion to small accounts, however, large industrial firms would be susceptible to pressure if an industrial linen supply company was connected with a powerful union. He advised with respect to uniforms, towels, linen, etc., most of these articles are bought through Chicago firms who in turn have them shipped from the southern states of Alabama, Georgia and Louisiana. He advised that rumor had it that the A-1 was in some way connected with individual who backed the old IGS, whose president, FRED EVANS, was killed in gangland fashion. Rumor in the industry also reflected that the old IGS had powerful connections with the Mechanics Union and through these contacts and hoodlum political contacts were able to secure many lucrative contracts with municipal parking lots and automobile agencies. He advised that the reason for EVANS' death was never clearly ascertained, however, EVANS' wife eventually sold the company to legitimate interests and, of course, the accounts which EVANS had accumulated went with the company. Now, however, there are rumors to the effect that A-1 is taking these accounts away from IGS.

On December 13, 1962, CG T-6 advised that he had recently heard through rumor in the industrial laundry industry that A-1 has been acquiring numerous accounts among the automobile dealerships in Chicago. He advised that Susk Pontiac, Epsteen Pontiac and Steven Mitchell automobile agency, all of whom are suspected by people in the laundry industry to be connected with hoodlum interests in Chicago, apparently have led the way toward A-1 acquiring numerous accounts among automobile dealers in Chicago, SUSK, EPSTEEN and MITCHELL set the pattern for a large majority of the other automobile dealers in Chicago in order to avoid any trouble.

T-6 also advised that he has recently heard that a business agent from the Meat Drivers Union was making calls with A-1 Industrial Uniform, Inc. salesmen in an effort to send up many of the meat packing houses in Chicago. He advised he would attempt to attain the name of this individual and any accounts he may have helped solicit for A-1.

On December 19, 1962, CG T-6 advised that he had recently learned that one [redacted] of Local 710, Meat Drivers Union, Chicago, Illinois, had been going around with one of the A-1 salesmen and introduced this individual as a friend of his. T-6 advised that he knew of two specific accounts which [redacted] visited with an A-1 salesman. They are as follows:

Roberts Packing
1116 West Randolph

Hershey Project Provision
1051 Lake Street
Chicago, Illinois

CG T-7 advised on November 19, 1962, that he had learned through individuals associated with the industrial laundry industry in Chicago that a NICK and GEORGE BRAVOS had recently started up the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, Inc. From rumors he had heard the BRAVOS brothers are strictly "muscle" and individuals associated with the hoodlum element in Chicago. He advised that rumor also reflected that A-1 would concentrate their activities with automobile agencies, trucking companies and gas stations as well as bars and taverns. That was supposedly for good contacts with the Teamsters, Laundry and Mechanics in Chicago.

T-7 advised that A-1 is apparently just like the old IGS when FRED EVANS ran it. He advised that FRED EVANS represented hoodlum interests in the industrial laundry industry in Chicago until the time he was killed in gangland fashion several years ago. He advised that EVANS' widow sold the firm to the Cleveland Overall Company, a legitimate organization. He advised, however, that when IGS was under the direction of FRED EVANS it was strictly a "muscle" operation as well as a firm which utilized its hoodlum and hoodlum-political contacts to acquire business. He advised that after the IGS was sold, members of the industry expected hoodlums to re-enter the industry and now most of the legitimate industrial laundry operators feel that A-1 is that business.

He advised that Superior Linen Company, run by [redacted] and [redacted] supposedly was connected at one time with MURRAY "The Camel" HUMPHREYS. He advised that this organization is strictly a linen and towel business with customers in the nightclub area of Chicago as well as restaurants and hotels in the business district. He advised that most people in the linen supply business in Chicago simply do not bother to solicit any accounts which Superior Linen services. He advised it was "common knowledge" that it was best not to fool around with these operators. He advised that this is one facet of the linen business, that being the section of the business which simply handles restaurants, taverns, hotels, etc. He advised that the other part of the business and that which acquires heavier equipment and more expensive equipment is the industrial laundry service, which launders uniforms and industrial towels. He advised that A-1 is concentrating on the industrial business, however, also handles some of the other type business as well.

With respect to the organization of A-1, he advised that one [redacted] of the Chicago New and Used Laundry Equipment Company, owns the building in which A-1 operates. He advised that the old Supreme Laundry which used to occupy the premises at 1217 Oakley simply moved to another location and is still in business. He advised that [redacted] apparently rents the premises at 1217 Oakley to A-1 and undoubtedly has sold them a large portion of their laundry equipment.

He further advised that the BRAVOS brothers are loaded with money and apparently pay cash for everything. In one instance, T-7 learned that FNU [redacted] of Supreme Laundry, had entered into a deal with the BRAVOS that Supreme would sell a boiler for $13,000 to A-1 rather than move it to their new location. [redacted] apparently approached GEORGE BRAVOS and asked him when he was to get paid and apparently pressed the matter whereupon GEORGE BRAVOS gave him $7,000 cash and a $6,000 check written on the Consumers Bank. He further advised that with respect to A-1's inventory, such as towels, overalls, etc., that all of this overall was shipped to A-1 on a COD basis. He advised that an inventory of this type is actually worth thousands of dollars.

He advised that Universal Garment Company is apparently supplying a lot of the inventory to A-1 and most of these garments and towels are shipped from the southern part of the United States. He advised that the industrial laundry business is very expensive to get into. Capital equipment is a tremendous expense and T-7 said that judging from the size of the A-1 plant, it would require better than a half of million dollars in investment to get such a business off the ground.

CG T-8 advised on November 21, 1962, that with respect to the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, Inc., that in his opinion, based on things he had heard among individuals in the laundry industry in Chicago that A-1 is simply a replacement for the old Industrial Garment Service (IGS) which was headed by FRED EVANS. He advised that after EVANS was killed in gangland fashion, it was thought that hoodlum interests were out of the laundry industry in Chicago with the exception of Superior Laundry in which it was rumored that MURRAY "The Camel" HUMPHREYS had an interest. He advised that [redacted] is an ex-employee of [redacted] and is now working for A-1 as manager of the inside operation. From all T-8 could learn, this is one of the few people employed who actually know anything about the laundry business or have had any experience in it.

He advised that A-1 moved into its present location only about two months ago and already is exerting considerable influence in the Chicago area, particularly in respect to automobile dealers. He advised that is is particularly interesting that A-1 is taking over many of the IGS accounts and there are apparently two ex-salesmen of IGS who are now employed by A-1.

T-8 theorized that A-1 is simply taking back the business which FRED EVANS had acquired for the IGS through his hoodlum contacts years ago.

T-8 advised that he has also heard there is unlimited money behind the individuals running A-1 and also an unlimited amount of inventory. He advised that over and above the purchase of capital equipment needed to run the business, there must be at least $50,000 to $60,000 in inventory available to conduct their business. He has heard that there is "Greek" money behind the enterprise and many individuals in the industry figure that there is hoodlum money invested in this enterprise. He advised that he has lost some business, however, no one has made any accusations that pressure of any type was used.

He advised that he had recently heard that Hoekstra Overhaul and Laundry Supply Company, 515 East 108th Street, South Holland, lost an account. the Martin Varnish Company, 900 West 49th Street. was overheard saying that they lost this account and indicated that he knew the background of one of the men who owned the Martin Varnish Company and that this individual was connected with the hoodlums in the Chicago area and that in all probability he lost the account due to the fact that the Martin Varnish Company was connected with the hoodlums.

T-8 advised that he had lost the 5th Avenue Auto Sales, 3400 West 5th Avenue, and also about a half of dozen gas stations in the Chicago area.

T-8 advised that one of his accounts, Milo Brooks Ford, indicated that they had been approached by someone at A-1 and the story he heard indicated that the Parts and Service Manager was advised that if A-1 service was not used, some of the windows might get broken. He advised, however, that he had heard the above conversation third hand and could not be absolutely sure of the reliability of it.

He further advised that he had heard that the individuals who own A-1 had previously owned a laundry company in Florida, which they sold and that the money they received as profit may be part of what is invested in A-1. He advised that an interesting situation exists in the industrial laundry business in that new business is extremely hard to develop due to the extreme competition in the industry. He advised that there is an axiom in the industry to the effect that it is "cheaper to buy a business than to build it". With this axiom in mind, he advised that the dollar volume of sales is used as a figure on which to base the selling price of a company. He advised that the price ranges between $40 to $70 to $1.00 of gross sales. He advised that at present the going rate in Chicago is $60.00. He advised, for example, if a corporation could go from zero to $10,000 gross sales, they could conceivably sell the company at that point for $600,000, half of which, of course, would not be declared due to capital gains situation.

Many individuals suspected that this was what EVANS was trying to do with the IGS, however, for some reason he was killed before the company was sold. He advised that the gross sales figures is based on the gross sales per week.

Obviously, if connections, political, hoodlum, or otherwise, could be used to run up a large gross sale figure in a short period of time, a limited investment could reap vast profits. Many individuals feel that this may be primary reason for A-1's entrance into the business, particularly in view of the fact that he heard that the individuals running A-1 had recently sold an industrial laundry in Florida at a huge profit and then entered the same type business in Chicago.

He further advised that he heard rumors to the effect that the [redacted] brothers who own the Cadillac Overall Supply Company in Detroit, who had purchased the business in Florida, which is operated by the same individuals now operating A-1, were either supplying uniforms or money to A-1. He advised that there was sufficient word around to lead him to believe that there must still be some connection between the [redacted] Cadillac Overall Supply Company and A-1. He advised that with respect to IGS, after EVANS was killed his wife attempted to run the business, however, was unsuccessful and decided to sell it. It was eventually sold to the Cleveland Overall Company, 1768 East 25th Street, Cleveland, Ohio, a legitimate concern, for a sum approximating $1,800,000. He advised that this figure was based on gross sales. He advised he mentioned this to give some indication of the scope and amounts of money involved in such dealings.

CG T-9 advised on November 19, 1962, that his firm had lost nine accounts due to competition by A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated. He advised that he had no information pertaining to the individuals operating this company and had no information which would indicate that any methods other than regular competition was used to secure these accounts. He advised that the uniforms and towels which are generally used in the industrial laundry business are all manufactured in the southern states particularly in the state of Georgia. He advised that the industrial laundry business is an extremely expensive business to get into requiring thousands of dollars for equipment and almost as much invested in inventory in order to service accounts. CG T-8 was recontacted on December 17, 1962, and advised that the Industrial Garment Service had been hit harder than any of the other industrial companies in the industry. He advised that it was unusual that none of his former customers could be talked out of the service or induced in any way to return to his firm. He advised that he has heard throughout the industry that the same was true by accounts lost by other firms to the A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated.

CG T-7 advised on December 17, 1962, that he had heard information in the industry that a NICK and GEORGE BRAVOS were behind the A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, and that they were the people that were originally behind the Industrial Garment Service although their names were never directly linked to this organization. He advised his firm had not lost any other accounts but indicated that Industrial Garment Service has been hard hit by competition on the part of A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated.

CG T-9 was recontacted on December 17, 1962, and advised that his firm had lost a few more accounts to A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated; however, the reason given by most accounts is that the individuals running A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, were friends of theirs and in no way was any kind of coercion or muscle tactics mentioned.

CG T-10 advised on November 19, 1962, that he had heard through individuals in the industrial laundry industry that two hoodlum connected individuals named GEORGE and NICK BRAVOS had entered the industrial laundry business and were operating the A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated at 1217 North Oakley. He advised further that he had heard that these individuals had unlimited funds at their disposal and were in a position to use their hoodlum and political connections in the City of Chicago to build a rapidly expanding business. He advised that NICK and GEORGE BRAVOS had the reputation of being the two largest bookmakers in Illinois; however, are now concentrating their efforts in the laundry business. He advised that he had heard that many of the companies including his own had lost a considerable number of stops to A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated. He stated, however, that Industrial Garment Service, the corporation originally run by FRED EVANS who was killed several years ago, was the hardest hit in the companies so far. He advised that Industrial Garment Service after EVANS' death was sold to a legitimate firm and he had recently learned that some of the employees of the old Industrial Garment Service were now working for A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, and apparently were attempting to switch old accounts which they had originally secured for Industrial Garment Service to A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated.

CG T-10 advised on December 10, 1962, that from information he had from the industry that A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, was rapidly expanding particularly in the industrial laundry business connected with automobile agencies in the City of Chicago. He advised he had not heard of any pressure or muscle being applied; however, most of the accounts were switching because of a friendship basis. CG T-10 advised that he had met with one individual whose name he refused to divulge who advised that he had played golf with SAM "MOONEY" GIANCANA in the latter summer during 1962, at which time SAM GIANCANA reportedly advised that "will be in the laundry business in about one month." He advised that he also heard that GEORGE and NICK BRAVOS were cousins of GUS ALEX, one of the reputed gangland leaders in the Chicago area.

CG T-10 advised on December 14, 1962, that he had learned that one of A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, top salesmen was one [redacted]. He advised as best as he could recall this individual came from the West Side of Chicago and was employed many years ago as a driver for the Mary Ann Bakery Company. He further advised that he had learned that the Munger Laundry was doing much of A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, flat work until A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, was completely set up to carry on by themselves. He advised that it was commonly thought in the industry that [REDACTED] Munger Laundry is actually [REDACTED] of GUS ALEX. He advised that [REDACTED] prior to his association with Munger Laundry was [REDACTED] in Cook County for many years. He advised that everyone treats [REDACTED] with great respect and everyone indicates that he [REDACTED] of GUS ALEX. He further advised that he learned that Garfield Linen located in the vicinity of Division and Cicero, Chicago, Illinois, had made some sort of a deal with A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, which no longer would raid any of their stops. He advised that it was interesting to note that Garfield Linen formerly had a partner by the name of [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] JACKIE CERONE was closely associated with [REDACTED] and SAM "MOONEY" GIANCANA and a power in the Melrose Park area of Chicago. He advised that the Garfield Linen Company is run by [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] being retired from the business several years ago. He advised that Garfield Linen had lost about three to four thousand dollars until they reportedly made some type of a deal with the A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated.

'G T-10 advised he was unable to learn precisely that this deal was indicating that it might have been money involved or simply based on the old friendship between [REDACTED] and JACKIE CERONE which caused A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, to respect Garfield Linen's accounts.

On December 19, 1962, CG T-10 advised that he had recently learned that [redacted] of A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, had worked for the Pine Crest Milk Company for a period of time after he left the Mary Ann Bakery Company. He further advised that he recently learned that the BRAVOS brothers had recently inquired two accounts: The Vanity Fair at Madison and Cicero and the Terminal Restaurant at 2310 Paulina. CG T-10 advised that he was unable to learn of any interest where any of the stops were complaining that any type of pressure was used to induce them to change services. In most instances the accounts simply explained that the individuals running the A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, were "friends of theirs".

On August 31, 1962, CG T-1 advised that he recently met GEORGE BRAVOS and [redacted] at a bar located on the corner of Oak Street and Rush Street in Chicago. He advised that [redacted] normally hangs out in a tavern located across the street from Chicago and Western Avenues.

On September 11, 1962, CG T-1 advised that on September 6, 1962, NICK BRAVOS was in the Chicago Room of the Palmer House having lunch with [redacted] a Chicago Policeman. He stated that both [redacted] and BRAVOS play golf frequently at the Tam O'Shanter Club. According to NICK BRAVOS, his brother, GEORGE, is having trouble with his left eye and NICK related a recent incident wherein he cursed his brother, GEORGE, concerning an individual who was in debt to NICK and GEORGE to $11,000.00 and GEORGE discontinued any further loans to this individual. NICK indicated that because GEORGE discontinued the loans this individual left town owing them $14,000.00 or $15,000.00.

CG T-1 also learned that [redacted] owes NICK BRAVOS the sum of $2900.00 from an old "juice" loan and that [redacted] brother of [redacted] is paying off the debt for him.

CG T-1 advised on September 20, 1962, that some of the places known to him, which are frequented by GEORGE and NICK BRAVOS, are the Athens Restaurant at Blue Island, Harrison and Halsted Streets, and also the Helas Cafe located on Halsted Street, Chicago. He indicated that the Helas Cafe is owned by one [redacted] who is of Greek derivation, and was a former South Side bookmaker and friend of RALPH PIERCE.

CG T-1 advised on September 27, 1962, that one (FNU) [redacted] is an individual who owns a hamburger place located on West Grand Avenue and is a partner of [redacted] [redacted]. He stated that this individual is known as [redacted] and is a "juice" collector for the BRAVOS brothers.

CG T-1 advised on October 16, 1962, as follows:

CG 92-1297

WAM:dkz

[redacted]
He indicated that [redacted] is the brother of [redacted] who used to hang out at the MGM Lounger but generally frequents the Flamingo Motel gambling operation of ROCCO FISCHETTI at Wheeling, Illinois.

[redacted]
[redacted]
He indicated that this individual may be the [redacted] of the Talk of the Town located at Division Street [redacted]
[redacted]. He indicated this man is an associate of [redacted]
[redacted]

[redacted]
He stated that [redacted] is a large sports bettor bookie and is friendly with GEORGE BRAVOS.

CG T-3 advised on October 19, 1962, that recently in the vicinity of the Pink Elephant on West Madison Street, Chicago, he saw [redacted] who is a former night club operator on West Madison Street, and most recently was alleged to be the [redacted] of the Stop Light, located on the corner of Roosevelt Road and Cicero Avenue in Cicero, a known hangout of top individuals in the criminal element in the Chicago and [redacted] area.

He also indicated that [redacted] ex-partner, [redacted] (LNU), is presently [redacted] the Pink Elephant Club. In conversation with [redacted] he learned that [redacted] is supposedly engaged in the real estate business. He observed [redacted] driving a white [redacted] bearing 1962 [redacted] License [redacted]

It should be noted that the above Indiana license is registered to one [redacted]
[redacted] on a [redacted]

He advised that JASPER "JAY" CAMPISE recently returned to the Spa Tavern located on North Avenue at Cicero Avenue after an absence of two to three days. He seemed anxious to contact one (FNU) [redacted] whom he described as a safe cracker and burglar. While present at the Spa Tavern he observed two individuals, who were tough looking, arrive and talk to JASPER CAMPISE. He noted that they were driving a late model car, bearing 1962 Illinois License DT6340.

The above Illinois license is registered to [redacted]

CG T-1 advised on October 12, 1962, that one [redacted]
[redacted] is a bookmaker who generally haunts the MGM Lounge, where he is a close friend of [redacted] [redacted] is also an associate of the BRAVOS brothers.

In connection with the BRAVOS brothers, he advised that both brothers were in years past bartenders at Andres Restaurant, a restaurant in the Chicago area. They were also both burglars and heist men until they gained a favorable association with GUS ALEX, who raised them to the position they are presently in in the gambling field.

CG T-4 advised on October 22, 1962, that DAVE YARAS and NICK and GEORGE BRAVOS are associated in the operation of the A-1 Industrial Uniform, Incorporated, and that [redacted] also known as [redacted] who resides at [redacted] frequently associates with YARAS and the BRAVOS brothers.

CG T-1 advised on November 2, 1962, that DAVE YARAS has two sons, one of whom is in the insurance business located on Wacker Drive and who frequents the Executive House. The other son has a Susco Rental Car Company at 215 West Washington Street. This son frequents the Kismet located next door to the Bistro Club on State Street, Chicago. He advised that both of YARAS' sons are friendly with [redacted] [redacted] local Chicago jewel thief. He indicated that DAVE YARAS is a Shylock loan man and buys hot jewelry, which he fences. He advised that YARAS is connected with the Midwest Leasing Company, 5151 West Madison Street, Chicago.

CG T-3 advised on October 18, 1962, that one (FNU) CERONE is the bookkeeper and perhaps attorney for NICK and GEORGE BRAVOS. He advised further that NICK BRAVOS, accompanied by a tall white male, blond individual, believed to be DAVE YARAS' son, on or about November 2, 1962, entered the Spa Tavern located on North Avenue just west of Cicero Avenue, went into the washrooms and pulled the towels from a rack and threw them on the floor. These towels are the roll type. BRAVOS then inserted his own towel roll in the machine. His towel is from the A-1 Industrial Garment, Incorporated, 1217 North Oakley, Chicago. The company formerly servicing the Spa Tavern was the Morgan Linen Service, Incorporated, of Chicago. He indicated that BRAVOS is conducting this muscle type work in numerous places using the same tactics in order to obtain business for his new laundry service.

✓ CG T-1 advised on November 9, 1962, that DAVE YARAS is a close friend and associate of [redacted] National Democratic Committeeman, and is also closely associated with [redacted] hoodlum attorney. He stated that YARAS is well respected in organized crime. He further added that YARAS is also a close associate of [redacted] and that [redacted] sends numerous customers to Susco Rental Car Company to obtain loan automobiles when purchasing new cars.

CG T-2 advised on November 19, 1962, that he recently learned from a prominent West Side bookmaker that GEORGE and NICK BRAVOS are no longer in the bookmaking operation, including on-the-track betting. He said that they have been instructed to discontinue this operation because of the fact that they are both well known bookmakers at the track and are causing considerable heat to be brought upon them as well as others in the bookmaking field.

In view of the discontinuance of the BRAVOS brothers from the bookmaking field, they have been given the sanction of the outfit to own and operate the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company at 1217 Oakley in Chicago. It has also been reported that the outfit receives a percentage of the profits from this business. It is believed also that DAVE YARAS is also connected with this operation and that they are contacting many companies who could utilize this service, most of which are hoodlum connected or under the influence of hoodlums.

✓ CG T-1 advised on November 20, 1962, that GEORGE BRAVOS was at [redacted] Restaurant about 7:00 p.m., November 17, 1962, [redacted] Restaurant being located across the street from the Edgewater Beach Hotel. He advised he learned that GEORGE BRAVOS was accompanied by the Chicago Manager for [redacted] the Detroit foreign automobile shipper. It was learned that BRAVOS said that he had a "real good thing going in a new laundry company" at A-1 Industrial Garment Company located at 1217 North Oakley Boulevard. GEORGE BRAVOS indicated he and his brother NICK spend all of their time at the offices of this corporation.

He advised that with respect to the laundry business they are in both the industrial laundry and towel business as well as the linen service, which is the type of business which services towel installations in bars and restaurants. BRAVOS continued saying that he has "big plans" and that eventually they plan to get into waitress uniforms, barber uniforms, janitor uniforms and busboy uniforms as well as the cleaning and service which goes along with this type of a business. BRAVOS also mentioned the name of [redacted] of the Janitors Union in Chicago, and explained that [redacted] is going to try to use his influence in the future to create a situation where janitors belonging to the union will be uniformed. Obviously, BRAVOS and the A-1 Industrial Garment Company will get the uniform business and the service of these uniforms thereafter. BRAVOS did not enlarge upon the methods to be used by [redacted] but left the implication they definitely would attempt to affect a situation whereby his union members would have a distinctive uniform in the future.

It was also learned that BRAVOS still lives at 715 North Pulaski Road and apparently has a girlfriend [REDACTED] (LNU), whose telephone number is ES 8-9761. It was learned by the informant that BRAVOS' home telephone number is Kedzie 3-2331. It was also learned that BRAVOS commented regarding the huge crap game which [REDACTED] [REDACTED] is running across the street from the Flamingo Hotel in Cook County, Illinois. BRAVOS explained that it is presently running in a quonset hut which is actually a huge warehouse type building. He further advised that on occasion the Flamingo Hotel itself is used to house the game if any "heat" is on. BRAVOS explained that originally he, GEORGE BRAVOS, worked with [REDACTED] to set up this huge game. GEORGE BRAVOS was incensed over the fact that he was "kissed out" of the deal after it was going good. In effect he was told to stay out by [REDACTED] and thereafter [REDACTED] and the Italian element ran the business. GEORGE BRAVOS was extremely sour over the fact after he had broken these individuals into the business.

BRAVOS commented briefly on the fact that SAM "MOONEY" GIANCANA apparently is behind the entire operation and that [REDACTED] is his man and indicated that he, GEORGE BRAVOS, has no strength whatever in the GIANCANA organization, being more closely associated with GUS ALEX.

CG T-1 advised on November 30, 1962, that [REDACTED] FRED EVANS, former owner of Industrial Garment Services, resides at [REDACTED] He stated that [REDACTED] the son of [REDACTED] is one of the present operators of Industrial Garment Services, and is an in-law of [REDACTED]. He indicated that [REDACTED] address was [REDACTED] Phone Number AL 1-9158.

ADMINISTRATIVE

On 1/23/63, PCI [redacted] advised SA's GEORGE E. BLAND and FREDERICK E. RODERICK that he has never met DAVID YARAS, nor NICHOLAS and GEORGE BRAVOS. He maintained that while he had placed bets when living in Chicago, he had had someone else act for him and he, therefore, does not know with whom the bets were placed. [redacted] then amended his original statement to the extent he admitted that he might have met one of the BRAVOS brothers at Fritzel's Restaurant in Chicago, but if so, the meeting was entirely casual, and he does not know them. 77

Synopsis:

Results of interviews of over 65 customers of A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, Inc. reflect that in most instances customers switched to A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, Inc. for reasons of friendship to the BRAVOS brothers, better price and service. In no instance was there any evidence of coercion or "muscle". Several customers admitted knowing that the BRAVOS brothers and DAVID YARAS were formerly known as gamblers and bookmakers. Several of the customers indicated that [redacted] is associated with the laundry operation and indications are that CHARLES NICOLETTI may also be connected with the operation. Officials of Industrial Garment Service which was formerly operated by FRED EVANS, now deceased after gangland killing deny A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, Inc. engaging in any hoodlum tactics to gain business. [redacted] interviewed and advised he had no information regarding NICHOLAS or [redacted] GEORGE BRAVOS. Also denied any knowledge of [redacted]

INTERVIEWS WITH CUSTOMERS OF A-1 INDUSTRIAL UNIFORM COMPANY, INC.

Date 3/11/631

[redacted] Texico Service Station, Archer and California Streets, Chicago, Illinois, furnished the following information:

In late January, 1963, he utilized the Hoekstra Overall Laundry and Supply Company, South Holland, Illinois, for purposes of obtaining coveralls and towels for this service station. In late January, 1963, he had a disagreement with HOEKSTRA concerning a bill for services rendered and he discontinued HOEKSTRA's services. He then called several uniform suppliers including A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, and after some consideration decided to use A-1, which is located at 1217 North Oakley, Chicago. He said A-1 offered him the "best deal," although A-1's prices were equal to other companies, he believed their delivery service would prove to be better and they required no deposit to start their service.

He related that A-1 exerted no pressure in obtaining his business, and he advised that he is not acquainted with any of A-1's owners or its employees.

[redacted] advised that he is [redacted] and [redacted] of Division Chevrolet, 1801 West Chicago Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

He stated Division Chevrolet has utilized the services of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Supply Company for the past five or six months. He stated his company has used the uniform and towel service provided by A-1 during these months and found it to be very satisfactory.

He related LENNY YARAS, who he knows very well personally solicited the business for A-1. He added DAVE YARAS, the father of LENNY YARAS, is also well known to him. He stated absolutely no pressure or muscle was exerted by anyone to get his company to use the services of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Supply Company. He said in the past his company did have difficulty with other industrial uniform supply companies in that they belonged to an association and at times were very independent. He related he has found that the A-1 Industrial Uniform Supply Company is very reasonable in its prices and its service has been excellent.

He added, in addition to LENNY and DAVE YARAS, who he knows to be connected with A-1 Industrial Uniform Supply Company, he also has met GEORGE BRAVOS. He explained he sold a Chevrolet truck to A-1 and negotiated the sale through GEORGE BRAVOS.

He stated he knows nothing about the possible hoodlum connections of the operators of A-1, and he has heard nothing about their possible "juice" activities.

[redacted] advised he is [redacted]
of the Standard Service Station, 2955 West Harrison, Chicago.

He related he has utilized the services of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Supply Company for the past five or six months. He stated he formerly used the Roscoe Industrial Uniform Company, however, that company had proven itself to be not so satisfactory.

He advised his father-in-law, [redacted] originally recommended that he use A-1 and a salesman from that company, whose name he cannot recall, stopped by and convinced him to utilize their services.

He related no pressure whatsoever was exerted by anybody to get him to order the service provided by A-1. He said the A-1 price for the service was definitely right, and they furnished him with new coveralls, pants, and shirts which his former laundry service company failed to do.

He stated he is not familiar with the individuals who operate the A-1 Industrial Uniform Supply Company and knows nothing about their connections.

[redacted] advised as follows:

He is comptroller of the Daniels Printing Service, 210 South Clinton Street, Chicago, Illinois. Through a friend of a relative who is employed by their company, he learned that the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company was looking for an outlet to handle their printing matters and a representative of their company contacted the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, 1217 North Oakley Avenue, Chicago. The representative sold the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company printing business and in turn was asked if they would be interested in some type of towel service inasmuch as in their business it is necessary to use a considerable number of "wiper rags". The A-1 Industrial Uniform Company made a desirable offer and for the past six months, they have been getting that service.

The arrangement between the two companies has been very serviceable and no indication has been made by the A-1 Industrial Uniform Service to secure additional service of them. There has been no personal contact between anyone of that company with [redacted] or anyone representing the company and all business has been transacted through the mail and through an individual who services that area.

[redacted] advised as follows:

[redacted] Perfection Car Wash, 7405 Roosevelt Avenue, Forest Park, Illinois. Approximately three months ago, he commenced taking the uniform service of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, 1217 North Oakley Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. A friend of his was also taking their uniform service and indicated he was satisfied with their service. The only service of that company which he utilizes is their uniforms and he is now considering discontinuing this service inasmuch as his employees would like to furnish their own uniforms in preference to those which are now obtained for them.

He does not recall the name of the individual who delivers the uniforms nor the name of the representative he telephoned when he instituted the service. The service to date has been very satisfactory and he knows of no one personally connected with that company nor of any influence exerted by that company on anyone taking the services of it. In the event information comes to his attention regarding the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company or representatives attached thereto which would appear in an undesirable light, he will furnish that information to the FBI.

[redacted] advised as follows:

He is [redacted] Nortel Oldsmobile Company, 1655 Cicero Avenue, Cicero, Illinois. Approximately four months ago, LENNY YARAS, Vice President, A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, 1217 North Oakley Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, contacted him regarding Nortel Oldsmobile Company using the services of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company. YARAS offered a better service which was more advantageous to them financially and in turn they accepted this service. To date, they have been extremely pleased with the service and goods furnished by the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company.

No pressure of any kind was used by YARAS to influence either he or [redacted] in accepting this service and their only knowledge of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company prior to this time was the fact that they sold a car to an individual connected with that company sometime back. He knows of no one other than YARAS connected with that company and through conversation with YARAS learned that he is a graduate of the University of Miami, Miami, Florida.

In the event any information comes to his attention regarding activities of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company or individuals employed by that company which might indicate an association with undesirable-type individuals or if any type of pressure or threats are made to representatives of Nortel Oldsmobile Company to continue utilizing the service thereof, that information will be furnished the FBI.

[redacted] Ostrow Motors, a Dodge Agency, 3030 West Lawrence, Chicago, Illinois, advised that he was first contacted concerning A-1 Industrial Laundry Service by LEONARD YARAS, sometime during the last part of October or first part of November, 1962. [redacted] said that he knew LENNY YARAS briefly from YARAS' Susco Car Lease business in Miami, Florida. [redacted] said that he was not particularly friendly with YARAS but YARAS had promised him that he would give the [redacted] agency some trucking business if [redacted] would use the linen service. [redacted] said that he had a large company quota in trucks and little opportunity to sell trucks and consequently agreed to switch his shop coveralls, wipe cloths, and shop maintenance linens from American Linen Company to A-1 Industrial Linen. [redacted] said this account amounted to $150 to $300 a month.

[redacted] stated that GEORGE BRAVOS had recently placed an order for a Dodge P-300 walk-in-van, dark green in color, and that the cost before financing was $3,614 for A-1 Industrial Laundry. [redacted] said that he expected that GEORGE BRAVOS, whom he had met since doing business with A-1 Industrial through LENNY YARAS, would sign the purchase order for this truck. [redacted] stated that there were no credit terms discussed for this truck and he assumed that A-1 Industrial would pay cash for the vehicle.

[redacted] said that since A-1 Industrial had in fact given him truck business, that he would be willing to solicit business or to recommend A-1 Industrial to other accounts if they continued to give him more truck business. [redacted] concluded that this would be a usual and good business practice.

[redacted] said that no pressure of any kind was used to induce him to change linen service other than the fact that he had an opportunity to increase his truck business. [redacted] denied that he had any other business association with LENNY YARAS or GEORGE BRAVOS.

[redacted] of Mary Ann Baking Company, 4545 Lyndale, Chicago, Illinois, advised that his company was now using the services of A-1 Industrial Linen due to their association with [redacted].

[redacted] In this connection, [redacted] stated that he had lent money to [redacted] on several occasions to start restaurants in the Chicago area and had hired [redacted] at various times since 1942 to work at the Mary Ann Baking Company as a salesman and also as a supervisor of the plant and trucks.

[redacted] stated that in relation to his backing [redacted] in various restaurants, that Mary Ann Baking Company frequently lent money to people starting new restaurant businesses. [redacted] said that they had about $250,000 on loan to customers at the present time. [redacted] said that as well as lending money to new restaurateurs to start their businesses, they also lent money to customers to take vacations, buy new cars, and on a number of occasions to purchase new homes. [redacted] said of this practice that in the restaurant coffee, milk, and baking business, the lending of money to customers was imperative to keep good stops and that the competition demands that they continue this practice.

[redacted] Pat's Car Wash, Incorporated,
5457 South Cicero, Chicago, Illinois, advised as follows:

On March 13, 1963, [redacted] was contacted at his own request and stated that since discontinuing uniform service with the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company about five weeks ago, an A-1 driver has dropped by each week presenting a bill. The bills have been marked "no service on garments." The latest bill was received on March 8, 1963. Last week he received a customer's invoice charging him $197.50 for fifty lost coveralls. He stated he felt this was high since he had told an A-1 representative that he would gladly pay the depleted value of the coveralls still in his possession which amounted to about one third of those originally put into service.

During the interview he telephonically contacted the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, Incorporated, and spoke with an individual who furnished his name as [redacted] (PH). He was advised that his firm's records were not available by the party he spoke with at that time, however, the records would be reviewed and he would be visited on the following day and the matter would be discussed.

On March 14, 1963, [redacted] advised that he was visited that date at about ten a.m. by the party with whom he had spoken on the phone with on the proceeding day. This individual was driving a black 1959 Pontiac Bonneville. He was a white male, age 40, dark complexion, 5' 7" tall, 165 pounds, had black hair and appeared to be of either Greek or Syrian extraction.

This individual told him that he would have to charge $3.94 a pair for the fifty pairs of coveralls, however, he stated he told him that he would only be willing to pay $2 a pair for the coveralls still in his possession. The individual then stated that he would have to have a conference with one of the members of his firm when he "gets back."

[redacted] Crown Aluminum Company,
 8130 North Central Park Avenue, Skokie, Illinois, advised [redacted] of the Company, would be the person who could furnish the reason why Crown Aluminum Company recently changed their linen supply in the form of roll towels from the Union Towel Company to A-1 Industrial Uniform Company.

[redacted] stated that it is his recollection from [redacted] that the quality of service from Union Towel Company was poor and they decided to switch to A-1 Industrial Uniform Company. [redacted] stated that to his knowledge, [redacted] was not solicited by A-1 Company and possibly he obtained the name of the service from the telephone book.

During the discussion with [redacted] [redacted] telephoned from an out of state location, and he was asked by [redacted] the reason for his change from Union Towel to A-1 Industrial Uniform Company. [redacted] stated that the quality of service of Union was poor and for no particular reason he changed to A-1 Industrial Uniform Company. He stated he was not solicited by anyone and did not show any partiality to A-1 for any particular purpose. [redacted] stated that if A-1 Industrial Uniform Company does not improve their service soon, he will terminate their service and obtain another.

[redacted] stated that in addition to roll towels being used in the plant which are only four, they also obtain uniforms for two men from A-1 Industrial Uniform Company.

[redacted] stated that [redacted] and that the telephone number at Crown Aluminum Company is JU 3-2620.

[REDACTED] Public Pontiac Corporation, 3150 West Ogden Avenue, advised that he has been [REDACTED] of this company for approximately two and a half years. The [REDACTED] of the corporation is [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

According to [REDACTED], Public Pontiac Corporation began using the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, laundry and uniform supply service on December 1, 1962. He advised that he believes this arrangement was suggested by [REDACTED] of the Division Chevrolet Company, 1801 West Chicago Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. Prior to that time, the company used the services of the Industrial Garment Company.

[REDACTED] stated that no "muscle", pressure, or intimidation of any kind was used to persuade his company to subscribe to the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company. [REDACTED] did not know NICK or GEORGE BRAVOS. He stated there was no union pressure brought to bear to induce the company to subscribe to the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company. [REDACTED] stated that as far as he knows, no one connected with Public Pontiac is indebted to NICK or GOERGE BRAVOS, or to DAVID YARAS, in any manner whatsoever.

During the course of the interview with [REDACTED] he intimated should his company have any difficulty with any union, or any "hoodlums", a simple phone call to "the right people would get everything straightened out". [REDACTED] was questioned further along these lines, however, he would only smile smugly and say nothing. He stated that his company "never had any union trouble inasmuch as they had the right connections".

[redacted] Red Kelly's Tavern, (formerly the Orchard Lounge), 1122 West Granville Street, Chicago, Illinois, advised that he subscribes to A-1 linen service as of January 1, 1963.

The reason he subscribed to the A-1 laundry service was because he heard that LENNY YARAS, son of DAVE YARAS, was selling laundry service for the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company. [redacted] went on to say that DAVE YARAS is an old friend of his, and felt that he might as well give his business to someone he knew. He stated that no "muscle" or pressure of any type was used to induce him to subscribe to the A-1's laundry service. [redacted] does not know NICK or GEORGE BRAVOS.

[redacted] stated that absolutely no one, including himself, connected with Red Kelly's Tavern, was indebted to either DAVE YARAS or the BRAVOS brothers.

[redacted] has been the [redacted] of the Village Fishery for the past eight years. Since [redacted] could remember, the Fishery has been utilizing a laundry, uniform, and towel service furnished by the Normal Towel Service Company, Chicago. [redacted] stated that during the recent years, Normal Towel Service has not furnished them adequate service inasmuch as they have been sending the Fishery aprons with holes and the laundry service has not been satisfactory at all. [redacted] stated the management jokingly called the Normal Towel Service the "Sub-normal Towel Service."

[redacted] stated that the Village Fishery is [redacted] one [redacted] and his son, [redacted]

[redacted] further related that about four or five months ago. [redacted] suggested to [redacted] that they switch the laundry and towel service. [redacted] told [redacted] that he had heard of a new towel and uniform service called the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, located at 1217 North Oakley. [redacted] stated he had never heard of this company before; however, based on the owner's son's suggestion, they discontinued service furnished by Normal Towel Company and began utilizing A-1 Industrial Uniform.

[redacted] stated that the prices or cost of the service furnish by A-1 Industrial Uniform is about the same as were charged by the former company handling their towels.

[redacted] exhibited a bill indicating that he had just paid $7.35 for services rendered by A-1 Industrial Uniform, and that hand towels, roll towels, and uniforms were in fact delivered to the Village Fishery this date by a representative of A-1 Industrial Uniform. [redacted] stated he did not know the service man's name; however, he utilizes a truck which he believes has the name A-1 Industrial Uniform painted on the side.

[redacted] now utilizes the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company to service the uniforms used at his service station. This company was obtained about 2 to 3 months ago. Prior thereto, [redacted] used ROSCOE Company for this service. However, during the time he had used ROSCOE he had become dissatisfied with the service, and when this happened, he used his telephone directory to find some other uniform service. Through the telephone directory he got A-1's number, called it, and started to receive their service. A-1 charges the same rates as did ROSCOE, but the service seems to be better. The A-1 routeman comes by once a week on Fridays, but this individual is not known personally.

[redacted] reiterated that his obtaining of A-1 was strictly voluntary, that no pressure was brought to bear to institute this organization, that no one referred him to A-1, and that he had no contact with any union representative.

the following information:

The A-1 Industrial Uniform Company presently serves [redacted] service station and this service has been in effect for approximately 3 months. Prior to this, [redacted] utilized the Roscoe (PH) Company for the same service. There is no difference pricewise between the service furnished by the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company and the Roscoe Company. [redacted] changed from Roscoe to A-1 Industrial Uniform Company as a result of the solicitation of an A-1 representative, an individual by the name of [redacted] (LNU), who is probably a salesman for A-1. About three months ago, [redacted] (LNU) came into [redacted] service station and said that he had good uniform service and that he could provide this service at the same price as furnished by Roscoe. However, [redacted] (LNU) was of Greek extraction and appealed to [redacted] "national spirit" and thereby induced [redacted] to obtain A-1 service. This [redacted] (LNU) obtained [redacted] s name from one [redacted] a good friend of [redacted] employed as a decorator - painter. It is believed, however, that [redacted] has moved from his home in the area of North Broadway and Foster Avenues and has returned to the State of California.

[redacted] LNU is described as a white male, 48 - 50 years of age, 5'6" - 5'8", 175 - 180 pounds, stout build, black hair, high pitched voice, well dressed with suit, shirt and tie and fedora type hat. Speaks in Greek and is of Greek extraction. As near as [redacted] can estimate [redacted] LNU came to him sometime in December of 1962 before the Christmas holidays. No paper was exchanged, no contract was signed, and the cost of have suits cleaned was about $1.00 each. A service man comes by every week on Thursday in the early afternoon at which time he delivers clean uniforms and picks up dirty ones.

The obtaining of service from A-1 was strictly voluntary on the part of [redacted] no pressure was used to induce him to obtain this service, and there were no labor implications to any of the dealings between [redacted] (LNU) and himself.

He said that at the present time he was doing business with the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company and had been taking their service for the past four months. He said that they launder their uniforms for their employees and furnish hand towels in the rest rooms.

He said that he had been approached by [redacted] who introduced himself as the manager of A-1 and said that the firm was going into business in the uniform and hand towel line and would like to have his business. He said that his reason for using A-1 was the fact that to the best of his recollection they were considerably cheaper than the service he was using at that time. He said that several months after he started with A-1 he received a visit from NICK BRAVOS who was inquiring concerning the overdue bill. He said at that time he owed the company about $60 and told BRAVOS that he was behind in his bills but that he expected to pay them in the near future. He said that he did so shortly thereafter.

He said that the service he received from A-1 was good and that nobody recommended A-1 to him nor has he received any pressure from anyone to either use A-1 or continue with them. He said that he has never borrowed any money from anyone connected with A-1 and has no intention of doing so.

He said shortly after he did start with A-1 he heard that they were probably connected with the syndicate. He advised, however, that since the service is good and that he has no complaints, he intends to continue with them.

[redacted] Hyde Park Chevrolet, 5506 South Lakewood, advised that this company has utilized the services of A-1 Linen Supply as well as their uniforms since January 1, 1962. He stated that they formerly utilized Industrial Linen Supply for 13 years and were completely satisfied with their services. He said the change came about when his partner, [redacted] suddenly announced one day that they were going to change linen supplies to A-1.

[redacted] stated simply that a friend of his had asked him to change and he agreed to the change because he had no reason to question his partner's intentions.

[redacted], who appeared to be very frank and open in his conversation, stated that their Hyde Park Chevrolet Company now owes A-1 over $900.00 for uniform supply. He said that he questioned their itemization on their bills and called them on it twice. He expressed the opinion that "they must have a lot of money since no one has come out to see me since I called them." [redacted] said that since he had nothing to do with changing their source of the supply, he has no knowledge as to any force being used by A-1, although he has no reason to believe that this was the case. He said that they have had no union pressure and have had no internal problems at all.

He said additionally that their former supplier has never called to find out why they changed their source of supply even though they had the service for 13 years.

[redacted] added one thing which he did not feel should be made public and that is that [redacted] to [redacted] well known Chicago political figure and who handles legal work for [redacted], called and said, "Why did you discontinue Industrial?" [redacted] stated that while he was at Mico Distributing Corporation, he obtained his towel service from the American Linen Service whose service was entirely satisfactory as far as [redacted] was concerned. He denied that there was any intimidation, coercion or threat of any kind to the best of his knowledge at the time A-1 Industrial Uniform Company installed service at Mico Distributing Corporation. [redacted] advised that there was no union connected with the operation of Mico and consequently there was no union pressure of any kind exerted to bring about the installation of the A-1 service.

[redacted] advised that he has never owed anyone for any "juice" loans and denied any connection with any such loans was used to force Mico to take the A-1 service.

[redacted] stated that he has also known GEORGE BRAVOS for three or four years and has always found both NICK and GEORGE BRAVOS to be very closemouthed. He stated that he has never been introduced to any friends or associates of either NICK or GEORGE BRAVOS and actually knew very little concerning them. He stated that he had the impression that NICK BRAVOS at one time ran a bookie joint in conjunction with the tavern and/or pool room on Western Avenue; however, he denied ever placing any bets with BRAVOS. [redacted] stated that the names DAVID YARAS and [redacted] are unknown to him.

[redacted] of Motel Niles, 7139 Milwaukee Avenue, Niles, Illinois, advised he is the [redacted] and [redacted] of the Motel Niles. He stated that he formerly had towel service from the Industrial Garment Company, as he had a friend, [redacted] who was a front for Industrial Garment. He explained that when A-1 Industrial Uniform Company took over the former Industrial Garment Company and [redacted] went with the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, he continued the service. He stated that [redacted] is presently employed by Wheeler Coverall which concern does not handle roll towel service and consequently he has continued with the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company.

[redacted] advised that he originally took the service due to his friendship with [redacted] and for no other reason, and has continued the service inasmuch as it has been satisfactory and he has seen no real reason for a change.

He denied that there was any intimidation, coercion or threat of any nature to either institute the service from A-1 Industrial Uniform Company or to continue the service. He stated that he has never had any union difficulties at the motel and consequently has never had any pressure brought upon him from any union or union officials regarding any of the services at the motel.

[redacted] stated that the names NICK and GEORGE BRAVOS, DAVID YARAS, and [redacted] were unknown to him. He stated that he has never met anyone connected with the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company other than [redacted] and the driver who currently picks up and delivers the towels to the motel.

[redacted] Crown Car Wash, Incorporated, 4347 West Belmont, Chicago, advised that he formerly had used the service of Superior Linen Service, 2537 South Wabash, Chicago, which service was at the car wash at the time he bought the business. He advised that about four to six months ago, a friend, [redacted] (LNU), and he were having a conversation regarding business at the car wash. During the conversation [redacted] whom he described as an Italian American male, indicated that he had a friend, [redacted] (phonetic), one of the owners of the American United Cab Company, and that he would endeavor through [redacted] to have the American United Cab Company vehicles use the facilities at the car wash, including gasoline, parking, and washing in order to assist [redacted] in the operation of the car wash. At the same time [redacted] indicated to him that another friend of his, not further identified, had just become connected with a towel service company in Chicago, and inquired of [redacted] whether or not he would be interested in taking the service in order to help out the friend. [redacted] explained that through the efforts of [redacted] the American United Cab Company business has been coming to the car wash, using the parking space and purchasing wash jobs and gasoline; consequently, he in turn started taking towel service from the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, as a reciprocal business action.

[redacted] stated that the service from A-1 has been good and that he pays $6.80 a month for the service, the same price he had paid Superior Linen Service. [redacted] could not recall the name of the individual who originally contacted him from A-1 regarding the installation of the service but did recall that the man was a white male and very short in height. He stated that subsequent to the starting of the service which was approximately four to six months ago, he has had no other contact with A-1 towel service other than the weekly contact with the driver. [redacted] displayed a business card of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company which bore the name [redacted] Service and Sales". [redacted], however, was unable to state whether [redacted] was the driver who makes pickups and deliveries

[redacted] Backstage, 935 West Wilson Avenue, advised that he formerly used the services of the Superior Linen Service for about seven years. He advised that he continued to use Superior Linen Service up until two or three months ago when he started utilizing the services of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company. [redacted] explained that he had a great deal of difficulty with Superior Linen Service in that they would from time to time forget to deliver a sufficient number of bar aprons or jackets for use at the Backstage, and also the quality of the towels and aprons were not always the best. [redacted] stated that a partner of his, [redacted] who operates the Sheridan Tap on Sheridan Road, knew that he, [redacted] was not satisfied with the Superior Linen Service and suggested that he give A-1 a try as he, [redacted] apparently knew someone connected with the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company. [redacted] stated that it was because of this recommendation by [redacted] that he started using the service. He denied knowing the name of the individual referred to by [redacted] as his friend at A-1 or in what capacity this individual is employed at A-1.

[redacted] stated that he pays "$9 a week to A-1 for the service which is approximately the same amount that he paid Superior Linen Service." He stated that he is very pleased with the service furnished thus far by the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company and indicated that the quality of the towels, aprons, and jackets is far better than that furnished by Superior Linen Service.

[redacted] stated that there was no intimidation of any nature to have him institute the use of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company service at the Backstage. He stated that he has had no labor difficulties at the Backstage. [redacted] stated that he does not know NICK or GEORGE BRAVOS and further that the name [redacted] is unfamiliar to him. He advised that he recalled having heard the name DAVEY YARIS, whom he referred to as "one of the boys." [redacted] stated that he has never met anyone connected with the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company and did not know if YARIS is connected with the operation.

[redacted] of the Sovereign Oil Company at 6051 South Knox, Chicago, Illinois. Approximately six months ago he was having uniforms for his company handled by the Mechanics Linen Service. They were given very poor service and in several instances, the uniforms were falling apart at the seams. [redacted] talked to one of his customers who recommended A-1 Industrial Uniform Service. He does not recall the name of this customer.

The price for the service is the same as he paid to Mechanics for their service. He still maintains the towel service of the plant with Mechanics. Seven uniforms are received each two weeks and the cost is $27.00.

[redacted] stated that absolutely no muscle was used from the A-1 Uniform Company. No unusual pressure was asserted in any fashion. [redacted] stated that under no circumstances would he tolerate any pressure or coercion and if any was asserted he would volunteer this information without hesitation.

[redacted] Industrial Garment Service, Incorporated, 509 West Lake, Chicago, advised that he is the [redacted] of Industrial Garment Service, Incorporated, in Chicago, Illinois, which is a division of Work Wear Corporation, 1768 East 25th Street, Cleveland, Ohio. He advised that he had been with Industrial Garment Service for many years and had worked for FRED EVANS, now deceased, and also for the AUERBACH family, who ran the business after EVANS' demissie. He advised that about a year ago the AUERBACH family sold their interests in Industrial Garment Service, Incorporated, to Work Wear Corporation of Cleveland, Ohio. He advised however that the AUERBACHs retained control of the Crib Diaper Service which was also an old FRED EVANS enterprise.

He advised that he was aware that the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company was now operating in the City of Chicago with reference to uniform rental and linen towel service. He advised as a matter of fact that his company had lost several stops to the new competition. He advised that A-1 Industrial Uniform Company is operated by GEORGE and NICK BRAVOS, individuals who he heard had previously operated in the laundry business in the State of Florida.

He advised that two of his former employees, one [redacted] and [redacted] of [redacted] had gone with A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, however he understands that neither of these individuals are employed by A-1 Industrial Uniform Company any longer. He advised that through an Attorney [redacted] of 1 North LaSalle Street, an injunction was drawn in an effort to stop [redacted] and [redacted] from taking accounts from Industrial Garment Service, and making them accounts for the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company. He advised that an attorney by the name of (first name unknown) [redacted] represented BRAVOS and the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company in the action. Both [redacted] and [redacted] made a deposition with reference to the legal proceedings, however with the termination of [redacted] and [redacted] employment with A-1, the legal action was discontinued.

social relationship between [redacted] and BRAVOS, who spent most of his time in Chicago and came to Miami only for occasional visits. BRAVOS had no part in the actual operation of the Atlantic firm.

At one time, BRAVOS said that he was formerly in the "coal business." [redacted] has no other information concerning the background of BRAVOS.

When questioned as to whether he knew DAVE YARAS, [redacted] stated that he met this individual on two occasions. The first was on one of BRAVOS' trips to Miami. [redacted] and [redacted] wanted to talk to BRAVOS, who suggested they meet him at the Bay Shore Country Club in Miami Beach. When they kept the appointment, YARAS was there with BRAVOS and [redacted] was introduced to him.

The second occasion was when YARAS accompanied BRAVOS on a visit to the Atlantic plant.

YARAS had no interest in the Atlantic firm, to the knowledge of [redacted]. On the two occasions when [redacted] met YARAS, [redacted] never gained any impression from the conversation that YARAS might be behind BRAVOS.

[redacted] has no knowledge of YARAS or his background. [redacted] had never heard of YARAS before meeting him at the Bay Shore Country Club. BRAVOS never said anything which would indicate any connection between YARAS and himself.

Various photographs forwarded by the Chicago Office were shown to [redacted] who recognized only YARAS among the individuals shown on these photographs.

[redacted] advised that the names NICHOLAS BRAVOS and GEORGE BRAVOS are not known to him. He added he may know them by another name or a nickname, but not by the name of BRAVOS or any of the following aliases:

M. BRAZO; ROBERT E. MARABOS; NICK BRAVOS; NICK MATTUCI; NICK SOBARB; GEORGE NICHOLAS; or NICK BRAVOIS.

[redacted] stated that he is acquainted with most of the bookmakers in the Chicago area, due to having lived in the area, and also trained horses that ran in the Chicago area for several years.

[redacted] further advised that he does not know [redacted] nor has he heard the name mentioned in any of his contacts or activities around the race tracks.

[redacted] advised that he trained horses for M. B. "BUDDY" ARMER for about a year and raced some of them in the Chicago area. He stated that ARMER died of cancer in about 1961, and, therefore, is unable to furnish any information concerning ARMER's activities. He added that if ARMER bet on the races he did so without his knowledge as he never asked him to bet or place a bet for him.

[redacted] stated that any checks made out to him or endorsed by him would be for the purpose of purchasing horses in certain claiming races or for other fees attached to racing. He added that these checks would be a matter of record through any of the race track offices located in the Chicago area.

[redacted] further advised that [redacted] now operating a public stable at Hialeah Race Track, Miami, Florida, was the former trainer of BUDDY ARMER's horses, and had trained them for a period of five or six years prior to his handling ARMER's horses.

[redacted] further stated that [redacted] a wealthy cattleman of Albany, Texas, was a partner of ARMER's for several years in the "Open Nine Stable." [redacted] stated that [redacted] could furnish a lot of information concerning ARMER and his betting activities if properly approached and a little pressure put on [redacted]

The following information was contained in Tampa's letter to Chicago dated February 28, 1963:

[redacted] interviewed by SA [redacted] viewed photographs of NICHOLAS and GEORGE BRAVOS, and stated that GEORGE BRAVOS was familiar to him.

He stated a couple of years ago he had attended a meeting of the National Association of Auditors at Miami in the month of December, and was the guest of SOL SILVERMAN at Tropical Park. A "runner" of SILVERMAN introduced him to a man, who resembles GEORGE BRAVOS, and suggested he could place bets with him.

He did not recall BRAVOS by name and disclaims any contact since with him. He knew of no Chicago connection on the part of BRAVOS and has had no contact since that at Tropical Park.

According to an article appearing in the "Chicago Daily News" Red Streak Edition, March 13, 1963, Page 3, Column 1, Reporter JACK WILLNER wrote an article concerning two rising crime syndicate gambling bosses, DAVE YARAS and GEORGE BRAVOS, turning their attention to renting towels and uniforms. He described YARAS as age 50, once indicted for murder of a racing news king and BRAVOS as a west side bookmaking chieftain. The following pertinent information was contained in the article:

"The company, with headquarters at 1217 N. Oakley, has been quietly signing up customers throughout the city for the last six months.

"A staff of salesmen recruited from other towel and uniform firms is taking its orders from Jerry Yaras, a son of the incorporator.

CG 92-1297

"Many of the newly recruited customers have been questioned by FBI agents in the last two weeks, The Daily News has learned.

"The customers have been asked whether they were pressured to take their business from other firms.

"One aspect of the fledgling firm's invasion into the linen and towel rental business is puzzling investigators.

"They are wondering whether the company was given the green light by Murray (The Camel) Humphreys, crime syndicate chieftain who has been a behind-the-scenes manipulator in the industry.

"There are some indications that syndicate bosses such as Anthony (Big Tuna) Accardo and Jack (Jackie the Lackey) Cerone were not consulted.

"Investigators believe retaliation may be taken against the new firm if it makes too many inroads in already established areas served by other hoodlum-dominated companies.

"Dave Yaras, who has operated night clubs in Miami Beach, commutes between Chicago and Florida supervising the new enterprise here.

"He and Lenny Patrick, longtime associates in syndicate gambling on the West Side, were both charged with the murder of James M. Ragen Sr., a racing news boss, in 1946.

"They were later freed when the testimony of state witnesses collapsed.

"Bravos and his brother, Nick, and Charles (Chuck) English were given the heave-ho from Sportsman's Park race track last May because they were termed 'undesirables' by the track security chief, Tom Downers.

"The three are known bookmaking bosses.

CG 92-1297

"The Bravos brothers are reported to be active in the management of I-1, although George is the only one listed in the papers on file. The incorporation date was Aug. 9, 1962.

"George Bravos is listed as president and director of the firm, giving an address of 715 N. Pulaski Rd.

"Yaras' title is secretary-treasurer. He is also listed as director. Corporate records give his address as 8042 Knox, Skokie. A third Yaras, Leonard, is listed as a director and gives the same Skokie address.

"Police said Dave Yaras usually stays at a North Side motel when he is in the Chicago area.

"Neither Bravos nor the Yaras brothers are listed in telephone directories at the addresses given in corporate records".

DETAILS:

The records of the Secretary of State, State of Illinois, reflect that 1963 Illinois license KW 4059 was issued to [redacted] on a 1957 Plymouth bearing serial number 14321547. Chicago T-4 advised that [redacted] who formerly was employed as one of the overseers of [redacted] gambling operations and now associated with NICK and GEORGE BRAVOS, although he continues to make collections for [redacted] (phonetic) regarding baseball bets. According to Chicago T-4 [redacted] has indicated that he and the BRAVOS brothers have been frequenting Jennie's Restaurant located on Stony Island near 85th Street. According to [redacted] numerous gambling figures in the Chicago area are now frequenting this restaurant.

On March 22, 1963, Chicago T-1 advised that he has recently been in Browne and Koppel's Restaurant with GEORGE BRAVOS. BRAVOS indicated that he was attempting to contact one [redacted] of the Great Western Laundry Company in Chicago. BRAVOS indicated that he wanted to hire [redacted] to operate the linen supply end of his laundry business.

Chicago T-1 has advised that one [redacted] is employed by the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company and this individual is a former gambler who at the present time is connected in a "fencing" operation with one [redacted] who operates a grocery store in the 700 block of South Pulaski. The informant indicated that one [redacted] a truck driver for A-1 was arrested two or three years ago while committing a burglary together with [redacted] a known Chicago burglar. [redacted] is employed by A-1 as a secretary and is quite friendly with both of the BRAVOS brothers. According to Chicago T-1 [redacted] is believed to be a customer of A-1 and is in frequent contact with the BRAVOS brothers. [redacted] the Stop and Go Tavern at 4750 West Roosevelt Road, Cicero.

Chicago T-1 further advised that he saw [redacted] on two occasions at the offices of A-1 Industrial Uniform Company and [redacted] a known fence and pawn shop operator in conversation with the BRAVOS brothers indicated that he would use his influence to get them stops. He advised that he overheard them discussing an individual by the name of [redacted] who apparently was quite influential and a good friend of [redacted] and learned that [redacted] during the middle of January apparently spent several weeks at the Eden Rock in Miami Beach, Florida. He advised that he learned that DAVID YARAS, who is also an official in the company, travels between his home in Miami, Florida, and Chicago and when accompanied by his wife stays at the Seneca Hotel in Chicago and when alone stays with his sons, [redacted] and [redacted] in Skokie, Illinois.

Chicago T-1 advised that A-1 Industrial Uniform Company is having numerous difficulties in installing plumbing and heating equipment needed in the business. They are also having trouble with the City Assessors Office, which would vitally determine the amount of taxes they needed to pay.

In this connection, Chicago T-1 said that one [redacted] employed by the City of Chicago Assessor's Office, recently contacted NICK BRAVOS and told him that no assessment would be made on their property and that he had told the assessor handling that district to stay away from A-1 Industrial Uniform Company inasmuch as they were [redacted] friends." This means that A-1 Industrial Uniform Company will not be on the City Assessors tax rolls for tax purposes.

He advised that an individual by the name of [redacted] [redacted] visits with GEORGE BRAVOS frequently and from the tenure of the conversation, Chicago T-1 believed that [redacted] is an active bookmaker in the Chicago area.

He further advised that he overheard DAVID YARAS comment to GEORGE BRAVOS that [redacted] (Phonetic) is apparently deeply involved in juice with GEORGE and that GEORGE is making efforts to straighten out the juice payments.

He further advised that two former employees of A-1, a [redacted] and a [redacted] gave some depositions in connection with a legal matter in which the BRAVOS' were involved with the Exchange National Bank. NICK BRAVOS was apparently concerned over the fact that [redacted] and [redacted] in their depositions stated that NICK BRAVOS was one of the owners and operators of the business.

He further advised that an individual named [redacted] [redacted] (phonetic) is an individual that apparently resides with [redacted] brother of [redacted] Chicago attorney.

Chicago T-3 advised on April 3, 1963, that GEORGE and NICK BRAVOS are two of the biggest "juice loan operators" in the Chicago area. Chicago T-3 stated that approximately two weeks ago one [redacted] was taken to GEORGE BRAVOS at the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company offices. [redacted]

[redacted] the La Joy Grocerland on Lincoln Avenue in Chicago and is heavily in debt due to gambling losses.

[redacted] came to an agreement with GEORGE BRAVOS whereby he received an $8,000 loan for which [redacted] must pay $400 per week "juice" on the loan for an indefinite period until the $8,000 and one week's "juice" is paid off. Chicago T-3 described [redacted] as a white male, age 31, who resides in Des Plaines, Illinois, and has telephone number 827-5350.

Chicago T-2 has recently advised that NICK and GEORGE BRAVOS have operated the horse book office for the [redacted] brothers in the [redacted] territory for the past three or four years. According to Chicago T-2 the BRAVOS' operate on a commission basis splitting the proceeds with the [redacted] brothers.

On March 25, 1963, Chicago T-5 advised that NICK BRAVOS is believed to have an interest in the Evzon, a Greek restaurant on West Chicago Avenue. According to this informant, BRAVOS formerly had an interest in the Grecian Village.

On March 25, 1963, Chicago T-1 advised that on that date LENNIE YARAS was at the offices of the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, when he received a message to telephonically contact a Mr. DELANCEY at telephone number ED 4-9855. Chicago T-1 indicated that YARAS' reaction made it appear that DELANCEY is a good friend of both LENNIE and his father DAVE YARAS.

Chicago T-1 advised that GEORGE BRAVOS recently contacted one [redacted] (phonetic) who is an employee of the City Department of Housing and Plumbing, and was able to, through [redacted] arrange for a favorable reinspection of the plumbing and heating units at the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company. BRAVOS was able to arrange for favorable treatment from the Department of Housing and Plumbing so that he could obtain a license to operate his laundry.

Chicago T-1 advised that he also learned that YARAS is a good friend of [ ] a jeweler at [ ] [ ] and apparently has had dealings with reference to jewelry with him in the past.

Chicago T-1 advised that he was present when a long distance telephone call from New York, New York telephone number LE 2-6766, was received for LENNIE YARAS. LENNIE was not present at the time. The individual calling was [ ] or [ ].

Chicago T-1 advised that GEORGE BRAVOS is in frequent telephonic contact with [ ] head of the Laundry Workers Union in Chicago.

Chicago T-1 advised that he believes that DAVE YARAS and his sons are engaged in making or enforcing collections of juice loans made by Hacking Brothers, of Chicago. He stated that recently DAVE YARAS was called by an individual in Florida who was attempting to obtain background information regarding one [ ] or [ ] who used to be a jewel thief and served a prison sentence at Rayburn, Florida. The Florida individual, possibly one [ ] was interested in obtaining the information for some Detroit individuals who wanted this information.

On April 5, 1963, according to Chicago T-2 [ ] [ ] high ranking Chicago hoodlum and NICK BRAVOS visited [ ] at his restaurant where they made final arrangements for [ ] to take linen service from the BRAVOS firm.

On April 30, 1963, Chicago T-1 advised that he recently learned that NICK BRAVOS and DAVE YARAS, who operate the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company, 1217 North Oakley Street, Chicago, recently had a situation involving Superior Linen Company. [ ] allegedly for [ ]

[ ] A-1 was taking over numerous customers from Superior and Superior felt that too many of their customers were being lost and therefore an agreement was made. Chicago T-1 advised that he believes that DAVE YARAS has set up the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company for his son, LENNIE, to operate.

Date 5/22/63

[redacted] advised that he was [redacted] the Athens Restaurant, 530 South Halsted Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, and that he resides at [redacted]. [redacted] stated that he and his immediate family are [redacted] of the [redacted] which is actually a corporation. He stated that [redacted] nor anyone else outside of his immediate family had any financial interest in the Athens Cafe. He stated that he is acquainted with [redacted] and [redacted] because they formerly frequented the Normandy Inn, which is located in the 100 North LaSalle Building, when he operated the Normandy Inn from about 1958 to 1961. He stated that his deceased brother was formerly the owner of the Normandy Inn and that after he died, he assumed control of the Inn. He stated that he sold the Inn prior to buying the Athens Cafe in 1960.

[redacted] stated that he has not observed [redacted] for about three years actually since he sold the Normandy Inn because to his knowledge, [redacted] has not visited at the Athens Cafe. He stated that he does not know NICK or GEORGE BRAVOS and does not subscribe to their laundry service, the A-I Industrial Linen Company.

[redacted] stated that he has the Athens Cafe insured by Anco Insurance Company, which is owned by [redacted] and [redacted]. [redacted] He stated that no "muscle or strongarm" was ever afforded him in connection with his insurance business or from any of his purveyors of goods and services. He stated that he secured most of his entertainment for the Athens Cafe from the AGVA Union or local entertainers. He stated that occasionally he secures talent directly from Greece and in so doing, he pays half of the entertainer's transportation charges from Greece.

[redacted] was reminded that [redacted] and his associates had been observed on a number of occasions using the back booth in the Normandy Inn at which booth also was located a red telephone which was used by [redacted] and his associates. [redacted] stated that he recalls that [redacted] would use the back booth at the Normandy Inn and probably used the red telephone which was located there.

Title: NICHOLAS BRAVOS; GEORGE BRAVOS;
DAVID YARAS; A-1 Industrial Uniform
Company, Inc., 1217 North Oakley, Chicago,
Illinois

Character: ANTI-RACKETEERING

Synopsis: Informants report that BRAVOS brothers are still operating "books" and furnishing "juice" loans. YARAS recently in Chicago and in 7/63, was in Beverly Hills, California.

DETAILS:

On May 29, 1963, Chicago T-1 advised he saw GEORGE BRAVOS together with DAVE YARAS in the parking lot at Dearborn and Van Buren Streets, Chicago.

On July 13, 1963, Chicago T-1 advised that GEORGE BRAVOS and DAVE YARAS were together on July 16, 1963, at which time BRAVOS mentioned he had over $37,000 invested in the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company and is "having his hands full" due to his inexperience in the business. Chicago T-1 added that BRAVOS has moved from his home in the Galewood section of Chicago and is now living in his new home in a Chicago suburb.

On August 12, 1963, Chicago T-5 advised that the BRAVOS brothers are operating a new tavern directly across from the J and R Cleaners at 653 North Cicero, Chicago, Illinois.

On August 12, 1963, Chicago T-1 saw GEORGE and NICK BRAVOS at the H and H Restaurant, 203 North LaSalle Street, Chicago, Illinois. Chicago T-1 learned that GEORGE BRAVOS feels that the Internal Revenue Service is "mad at him" and is attempting to put him in jail. BRAVOS said he had invested $335,000 in the laundry. Chicago T-1 did not know whether BRAVOS referred to the Cadillac Laundry in Florida or the A-1 Industrial Uniform Company in Chicago. BRAVOS indicated that he and his brother, GEORGE, were engaged daily in obtaining new accounts for A-1.

Chicago T-1 advised that [redacted] was working in a "book" on the west side of Chicago for the BRAVOS brothers possibly from his own home.

Chicago T-1 advised on July 12, 1963, that GEORGE and NICK BRAVOS are handling a considerable amount of "juice" loans and have their headquarters in the vicinity of Western and Chicago Avenues.

CG 92-1297

Chicago T-1 said that NICK BRAVOS is presently playing a lot of golf and plays at the same country club as SAM GIANCANA.

AT LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

Chicago T-6 advised on July 9, 1963, that DAVE YARAS was at the Friars Club, Beverly Hills, California, on that date. YARAS was playing cards with [redacted] and actor [redacted]

AT MIAMI BEACH, FLORIDA

On July 17, 1963, SA [redacted] attempted to contact DAVE YARAS at his residence, 4410 Adams Avenue, Miami Beach, Florida. At this residence Agent [redacted] was advised by an elderly woman that YARAS and his family were in Chicago for at least a week. This woman, who identified herself as YARAS' mother-in-law, said YARAS could be reached in care of [redacted] at telephone number RO 1-1699 or "LENNIE" at telephone number AR 6-2313.

Public service records of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, Chicago, reflect that AR 6-2313 is listed to the Midwest Staple Company at 3940 West Chicago Avenue and also the Ideal Stencil Machine Company at the same address. This same service reflects that RO 1-1699 is listed to [redacted]

The indices of the Chicago Division contain no information on [redacted] or the two firms mentioned above.

It has been previously reported by Chicago T-1 that one [redacted] (phonetic), is employee of the City Department of Housing and Plumbing who arranged for a favorable reinspection of the heating and plumbing units at A-1. In connection with another recent investigation it was learned that a golfing partner of SAM GIANCANA at the Fresh Meadows Golf Course, Hillside, Illinois, was one [redacted] (phonetic). It is not known if these two men are identical.
